Baby Is Victim Of S'Burg Fire; Mother In Critical Condition

ASTRONAUT PRACTICES — Astronaut John Glenn practices top-egress training in Mercury spacecraft. This is part of the new recovery aid using the flotation collar attached to capsules by scuba divers. Astronaut Glenn Leaves 'Ready Room' To Attend Church, Signs Autographs

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. left the seclusion of his flight "ready room" Sunday, attended church, and then—as if he didn't have another thing to do in the world—signed autographs for more than 50 wide-eyed Sunday school children.

Looking trim, cheerful and relaxed, Glenn wheeled his tan convertible into the shaded parking lot of the Riverside Presbyterian church in Cocoa Beach and walked into the services 10 minutes late.

The cinderblock church is located about six miles south of Cape Canaveral, where Glenn is making final preparations for an orbit flight three times around the world, scheduled next Wednesday.

Glenn, nattily dressed in a grey suit, sat on a folding chair just inside the rear door, his legs crossed much of the time. He listened intently throughout the service, which included a sermon by the minister, the Rev. Charles William Pfeiffer, on the responsibilities of the minister and the congregation.

Smiles Slightly

Glenn smiled slightly when the choir director, Mrs. S. L. Trabue, dedicated a hymn "in recognition of our astronaut." Glenn may have likened the title of the hymn, "The Silent Sea," to his upcoming voyage in the silent void of space.

Then he stood and joined in singing "Oh, Master, Let Me Walk With You."

While Glenn was going to church in Florida, his wife and their children, John David, 16, and Caroline, 14, attended services at the United Presbyterian church in Arlington, Va. The family's home is in that Washington suburb.

Throughout his life, Glenn has been dedicated to his religion and often has said, "It should not be a sometime thing, handy only in emergencies." When he was becoming considered for Project Mercury he consulted his minister about possible religious blocks to manned space flight. The minister, the Rev. Frank A. Irwin, of Arlington, Va., assured him there were none.

A few minutes before the service ended, the adjoining Sunday school let out and hordes of children, all sizes, poured out. Word had circulated that Glenn—who frequently attends the church — was inside.

They lined up outside the entrance, with James Fowler, 12, jockeying into the No. 1 spot. There were screams of delight as Glenn walked out and shook hands with the Rev. Mr. Pfeiffer, who wished him, "Good luck and God bless you." Several other parishioners wished Glenn luck before the kids swarmed about him.

James Fowler got his Bible autographed. Glenn had trouble with the pen handed him by a second boy, and got out his own, which he used for the remainder of the autograph session.

To make his task easier, Glenn moved to a nearby automobile and used the hood as a desk top. The kids—all well-scrubbed and neatly dressed—lined up in orderly fashion behind him.

"There's sure a bunch of kids at Sunday school today," Glenn commented with his characteristic wide grin. "Looks like everybody got out."

Officials Say Pilot Was A Spy

BARI, Italy (AP) — Authorities said Sunday a Bulgarian air force pilot seemed to imply he was making a break for freedom in crashing his photo reconnaissance plane after two passes over a secret NATO missile base near Bari.

But counterintelligence officials scoffed at this, pointing out the pilot had plenty of chances to land in Italy, had he wished to, before reaching the missile base Saturday. They were studying exposed film taken from the wreckage of the high-flying, Soviet-built MIG19 jet.

A Foreign Ministry communique announced a strong protest had been lodged with Communist Bulgaria against the violation of Italy's air space. The protest was handed to Bulgarian Minister Constantin Micev.

The Bulgarian consulate in a statement said the pilot, Lt. Milos Podgoros, 22, lost his way in foggy weather in a training flight over Bulgaria. It asked that pilot and plane be returned.

Linked To Accident

But Italian newspapers likened the crash landing to the Francis Gary Powers U2 incident, noting: The pilot had to fly more than 400 miles, across Yugoslavia or Albania, to reach southern Italy; that he had passed over Italian bases where he could have landed, and that radar indicated he deliberately peeled off from a light of several Bulgarian planes.

Newspapers demanded the same stern treatment for the Bulgarian as Powers received. Powers, whose high-flying reconnaissance plane was downed deep in the Soviet Union in 1960, was sentenced to 10 years detention. The incident was used by Soviet Premier Khrushchev as a reason for wrecking a summit conference in Paris not long after Powers was downed.

The Bulgarian pilot, who sobbed and fainted when farmers pulled him from the wreckage of his plane, was under heavy guard and was being questioned in a hospital at nearby Acquaviva.

He suffered a fracture of the left arm and a scalp wound that required 10 stitches. Doctors say his condition is not serious.

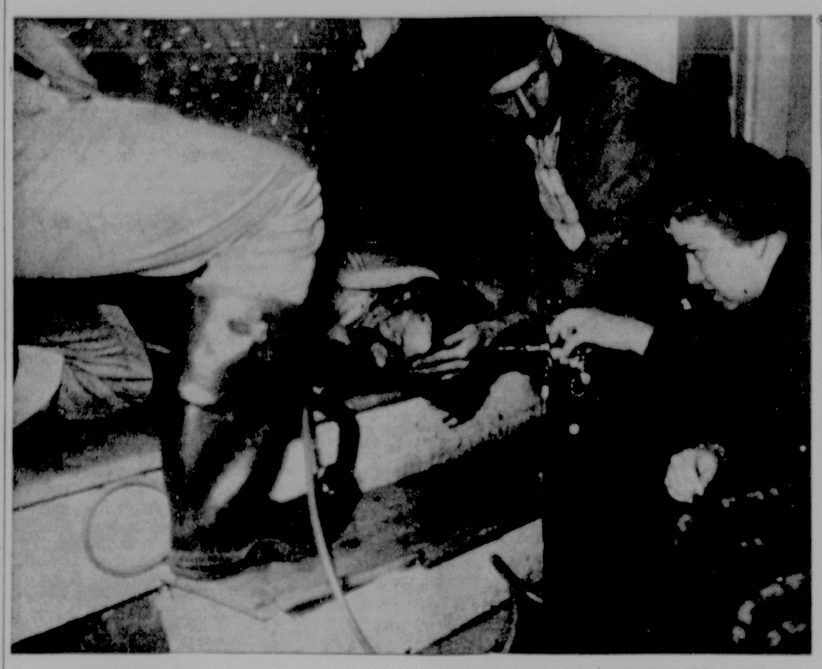

Military sources said the pintsized, boyish-appearing Podgoros was, or was pretending to be, in shock.

Police Act

One hundred and fifty national police cordoned off the field where the fully armed, faster-than-sound Bulgarian plane crashed. The field is less than 2,000 yards from one of Italy's newest secret North Atlantic Treaty Organization missile bases at Gioia del Colle.

The Gioia del Colle missile base is six miles from Acquaviva, which is 17 miles south of Bari. The base lies 125 miles across the Adriatic from Communist Albania.

Long-range missiles from the base could hit the Soviet Ukraine or Moscow. Shorter-range missiles could plaster the concrete submarine pens along the Albanian coast.

FIRE VICTIM — A 21-year-old woman, tentatively identified as Mrs. Edward Maps is given oxygen by rescue worker of the Stroudsburg Fire Department. Van Zandt To Run If GOP Leaders Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., has indicated he will become a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor if he gets the backing of party leaders.

From his office Saturday Van Zandt issued the following statement:

'I will become' a candidate for governor when selected by the Republican State Committee at what I hope will be a convention of the Republican Party's state committeemen and county chairmen and vice chairmen."

The statement also said he was not a candidate for the United States Senate.

When pressed about the portion of his statement dealing with the gubernatorial race, Van Zandt said: "The announcement will have to speak for itself. That's it."

The statement and a meeting with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa. yesterday preceded an announcement by Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside that he would seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Scott met with Van Zandt of Altoona, and Walter Alessandroni, a Philadelphia lawyer who has also announced as a Republican candidate for governor.

Scott also said he plans to meet with various party leaders on the subject of the GOP gubernatorial candidate.

After the meeting Scott sidestepped the question of Woodside's candidacy. His office said the senator had heard of Woodside's plans to announce for governor, but did not know that the announcement was being made Saturday.

Scott had previously sought to push Rep. William W. Scranton, R-Pa., of Scranton for governor or senator but Scranton has announced he will seek neither nomination but will run again for his House seat.

Girl, 6 Months, Is Identified As Julia Maps

A SIX-MONTH-OLD girl, tentatively identified as Julia Louise Maps, died last night at the Monroe County General Hospital after being taken from smoke-filled home at 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maps, suffered smoke inhalation and other injuries.

Mrs. Maps reportedly suffered second degree burns and fractured skull. Her condition was listed as "critical."

The mother, identified as Mrs. Christine Wolbaugh Maps, age 21, was also admitted to the hospital late last night suffering from both smoke inhalation and injuries.

The woman and child late last night were rushed to Monroe County General Hospital when their home at 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg caught afire.

The frame-two story residence was engulfed with smoke — but little fire — as firemen from nearby companies sought to pinpoint the location of the blaze.

The woman was rescued from the smoke-filled rooms by Kenneth C. Werkheiser of the Stroudsburg Fire Department. She was immediately given several tanks of oxygen at a back entrance while the ambulance was summoned.

Locate Baby

While she was being rushed to the hospital, firemen located the naked body of a child believed to be six months old. The child was lying on a small cushioned bench when found.

The child also was rushed to the hospital by police car.

A man, believed to be the husband and father of the victim was still missing late last night.

The two fire companies from the Stroudsburg Fire Department were summoned to the fire at about 10:30 p.m.

The house was completely filled with smoke. Little fire could be seen in the home's interior. Firemen, using searchlights, entered the building to determine the source of smoke and the occupants.

The woman was the first one discovered. She was badly burned and firemen and rescue helpers worked for aproximately half an hour with oxygen tanks to revive her.

The ambulance was summoned and she was taken to the hospital.

The fire was brought under control about midnight last night.

It was reported that the firemen searched the double story building four times on hands and knees to locate the husband. It was to no avail.

The fire was believed to have started from undetermined origin. Firemen last night reported that the home had been smouldering for some time before any fire alarm was sent in.

Police and firemen were also trying to learn if an explosion occurred inside the home.

It was learned that the Maps had only recently moved to the Stroudsburg address.

The search for the husband continued late last night. At first firemen believed Mrs. Maps husband was in the building.

A check of the house uncovered nothing. Police launched a search for Maps shortly thereafter.

Police began questioning neighbors and a number of nearby buildings.

Mrs. Mae. G. Young of 512 Sarah St., sent in the fire alarm.

Schoeppel, GOP Senator, Cancer Victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel, R-Kan., died unexpectedly Sunday at the Naval Medical Center in suburban Bethesda, Md., where he had been under treatment for cancer. He was 67.

A two-time governor of his native Kansas, Schoeppel had been in the hospital since Dec. 4 but only last week his office had reported him making progress in his treatments. Hope was even expressed that he might be able to return to his Senate desk late this month.

The hospital said death came unexpectedly at 12:55 p.m. EST, and was due to an abdominal malignancy.

Comes Swiftly

The fatal onset came so swiftly that his wife, Marie, was not able to reach his bedside before he died and it was some little time before she could be advised of the death. A sister, Miss Elizabeth Schoeppel, was with him.

Schoeppel's death will leave the Senate lineup at 35 Republicans and 64 Democrats until a successor can be appointed by Gov. John Anderson, also a Republican.

Schoeppel generally was counted in the more conservative wing of the Republican party. He did not participate a great deal in floor debate but was active in off-the-floor direction of party policy.

Schoeppel was elected to the Senate in 1948 after serving two two-year terms as governor. He was re-elected to a third six-year term in 1960.

Storms Whacks Most U.S.; Ice Hits 'Frisco Freeways

Snow, hail, sleet, freezing rain and bitter temperatures beset much of the nation Sunday.

The winter weather caused a fatal avalanche on Mt. Elbert in Colorado's Rockies; it also forced postponement of the Big Crosby Golf Tournament finale on normally balmy Monterey Peninsula in California.

It spread heavy snow atop drifted, rutted relics of earlier snows in the nation's midsection. It slicked roads from San Francisco to western Pennsylvania.

It dropped the mercury to 50 below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont.

The Pacific Northwest was clear but abnormally cold. Sub-zero temperatures were reported in eastern Washington and Oregon.

The temperature dropped to 4 above at Washington's capital city of Olympia, in the usually mild Puget Sound area.

Warmer Trend

New England and New York, normally frigid at this time of the year, were experiencing a warming trend.

Rain was scattered through the Gulf states while freezing drizzle mixed with some snow pushed northward into the Upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

Six persons, including four children, were killed in a crushing avalanche at Twin Lakes, Colo. The avalanche swept away three homes and a cabin. Two persons were found alive in the wreckage of their home.

The threat of a second avalanche forced evacuation of a dozen families living in the Twin Lakes area.

The avalance followed three nights of heavy snowfall and high winds in the area.

Nine persons were hospitalized when a bus rammed a stalled truck during a blizzard near Nephi, Utah. Two Montana traffic deaths were blamed on icy roads and poor visibility.

For some California children the state's snowfall was the first they had ever seen. It was the first experience with snow for some San Francisco Freeway drivers, too.

Slick Freeways

Police reported many cars skidded off snow-slicked freeways. And in hilly San Francisco the police radio broadcast warnings to motorists to "avoid elevated heights; they are extremely dangerous."

$150,000 Fire Hits Easton

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—Fire, feeding on stored tar paper and linoleum, wrecked a four-story brick building in downtown Easton Sunday night causing an estimated $150,000 damage.

One fireman, Paul Eonik, suffered smoke inhalation. He was admitted to Easton Hospital for observation.

Firemen said the blaze apparently broke out in the front of the building, owned by Lyons Floor Covering Co.

The company moved to its present location after a fire in 1959 leveled its former building several blocks away.

Pocono School Official Replies To Allegations

(The following article was written by David E. Neison, Secretary to Pocono Mountains Joint School District. It is in reply to charges levelled Jan. 18 that wasteful expenditures are allegedly taking place in the district. The charges were made by Donald Robbins, Sr., Tannersville insurance broker.)

To correct a misconception of the operation of a Joint School system as outlined in an article quoting a talk by Mr. Donald Robbins, Sr., in the Stroudsburg Daily Record, January 18, 1962, we respectfully submit the following information:

The Pocono Mountain Joint Schools is composed of eight (8) Districts with a total of forty (40) Board Members. Each of those forty members has a voice in the conduct of the affairs of the Pocono Mountain Joint schools by virtue of his or her membership on one of five (5) sub-committees. Each sub-committee is composed of eight (8) members, one (1) from each district and meet once each month to discuss matters pertinent to that particular committee and to prepare recommendations for presentation to the Joint School Committee.

Although every effort is made, it is not always possible to have all eight members present at sub-committee meetings, and there are times when there are less than a majority of members present at the sub-committee meetings. When this occurs, the report of that sub-committee is labeled a minority report, (this apparently, is the minority referred to in the article of January 18, 1962.) However, a majority of members must be present at Joint School Committee Meetings before any business can be transacted.

About Decisions

All final decisions of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools are made by the Joint School Committee in accordance with the Pennsylvania School Code. This committee is composed of eight (8) members, one from each district, who, when voting, expresses the opinion of his local school board. The reports of the sub-committees are submitted to the Joint School Committee for consideration. It is often the case where a minority report, as outlined above, reaches the Joint School Committee for final action. A majority of the members of the Joint School committee must be present before action can be taken on such reports, either minority or majority sub-committee reports. There is no case on record, in the history of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools, where final action was taken on any matter except by majority vote of the Joint School Committee.

The financial affairs of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools are examined each year by a certified Public Accountant. In addition to this, the financial affairs are carefully examined each year by a team of Auditors from the State Auditor Generals Office. This team of Auditors carefully examines all expenditures to determine if supplies, etc., are properly bid and are purchased on the basis of the lowest bid received, kind and quality of the merchandise involved being equal. In the case of Insurance (which need not be bid) the considered opinion of the Joint School Committee is that the type of protection purchased must be of the very best in every respect. The committee firmly believes they have acquired such protection for the tax payers.

Reports On Meetings

The history of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools, as recorded in the books of minutes, are available for inspection by the public and may be examined at the office of the Secretary located in the Junior-Senior High School, Swiftwater, Pa.

We extend a sincere invitation to the taxpayers of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools area to attend our meetings, either sub-committee or Joint School committee. Such visits would serve two purposes, (1) To assure the taxpayers that the "Political Horseplay" referred to in the article of January 18, 1962, does not exist and (2) to better inform the public of the many and complex problems with which the School Directors of today is faced in his sincere effort to provide the best Educational System possible for the children of our area.

We agree with Mr. Robbins that school business is big business. We assure you that we, the Directors of the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools are making every honest effort to operate our affars in a business like and efficient manner.

Redistricting Session Will Begin Today

HARRISBURG (AP)—The long awaited special legislative session to act on a congressional redistricting measure is to be convened at noon Monday.

And, if everything goes off without a hitch, Pennsylvania's 30 congressional districts will by week's end have been reduced to 27 to conform with population trends revealed in the 1960 Census.

It will be the first time in history that a special session and a regular session of the legislature will be running concurrently.

The special session had to be called by the governor because the Constitution limits the 1962 regular session to budget matters.

The Democrats agreed to cut out the Philadelphia seat of Rep. Kathryn Granahan; Republicans eliminated a seat by merging the districts of James E. Van Zandt, Altoona, and Irving Whalley.

The third seat will be wiped out by combining the districts of Rep. Ivor D. Fenton of Mahanoy City, Republican, and George M. Rhodes, Democrat, of Reading. Fenton and Rhodes will resolve the political complexiion of this district in a head-to-head contest next fall.

Both have expressed displeasure at the reapportionment plan and their adherents among the legislators are expected to carry these protests before the legislative bodies.

Colorado Disaster Kills 6

Huge Avalanche Shatters 3 Homes

TWIN LAKES, Colo. (AP)—A massive avalanche Sunday crashed down the slopes of Mt. Elbert, highest peak in Colorado, and swept three homes and a cabin away.

Six bodies, including those of four children, were found far from their shattered homes. Still missing was a boy, 10.

The threat of a second avalanche forced evacuation later of the dozen families living in Twin Lakes.

Army ski troops from Camp Hale, near Leadville, helped residents move their belongings to Leadville. An Army spokesman said the new threat developed on the slopes about 700 yards closer to Twin Lakes, located two miles from the early-morning slide.

Twin Lakes is 140 miles southwest of Denver.

Found Alive

By probing the 15-foot snow with an air hose, searchers found Mr. and Mrs. William Adamich alive in wreckage of one of the crushed houses. They were hospitalized in shock.

The bodies of one son of the Adamich couple; Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Shelton; the Sheltons' son, Steve, 16, a Leadville high school sophomore; and their two daughters, aged 7 and 9, were recovered by midafternoon.

The Sheltons' dog escaped.

The slide, a quarter-mile long, climaxed three nights of heavy snowfall and high winds. The storm abated early Sunday.

As it thundered down the mountain, it ripped trees and power poles and carried rocks and earth for several miles. The bodies of three of the victims were found 500 feet away, under three feet of snow.

Rescuers were led to the Adamich home by faint calls for help rom Mrs. Adamich. A piece of the shattered house had held snow and debris off the couple, but their two boys had been swept away.

The suction of the slide apparently pulled the two Adamich children out of the house, Sheriff Clarence McMurrough said.

To Assure Success Of Alliance Program

U.S. Warns Lat. America Must Quarantine Castro

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States warned Latin America Sunday it must quarantine Cuban communism to assure success of President Kennedy's $20-billion Alliance for Progress program.

The warning came from Secretary of State Dean Rusk as a diplomatic struggle began in this plush South American resort over how or whether to punish Prime Minister Fidel Castro for establishing a Communist bridgehead in the hemisphere.

The meeting of foreign ministers of the 21-nation Organization of American States formally opens Monday, but delegates already were carrying on spirited backstage arguments on what to do about Castroism.

Remove Threat

Delegation chiefs agreed Sunday night to postpone until Tuesday the first plenary session, when they will begin speechmaking. Brazil made the proposal to allow for further informal talks aimed at resolving the dispute over ways to deal with Cuba.

Rusk, arriving in midmorning, was believed driving home the message that the Communist threat must be removed from the path of the big U.S. economic aid program.

Rusk, predicting success for the conference, told reporters: "Security from extracontinental (Communist) intervention is essential to the success of our cooperative efforts for social and economic advancement under the Alliance for Progress.

"Consequently this meeting of consultation complements the vitally significant ministerial meeting of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council which five months ago adopted the now famous charter of Punta del Este."

The charter laid the groundwork for the $20-billion U.S. program to combat Castroism and communism in the hemisphere with an all-out drive against economic ills.

The Rusk statement reflected Kennedy's deep concern for creating a climate in which the Alliance for Progress can flourish against the political pressures generated by Castroism.

Kennedy confided to Argentine President Arturo Frondizi at a Christmas Eve meeting in Palm Beach, Fla., that he would have a hard time obtaining Alliance for Progress funds from Congress if the Punta del Este meeting failed to produce positive "proof of Latin-American support."

A significant preliminary development was an indication that Argentina and the United States are edging closer on how to deal collectively with Cuba. Argentina and the other members of Latin America's so-called big four—Brazil, Mexico and Chile—have displayed varying degrees of opposition to drastic sanctions against Castro. An Argentine-U.S. accord could have a bandwagon effect on the conference.

Rusk will press for a vote to impose political and economic sanctions and he wants the backing of one or more of the major Latin-American countries.

Anthropologist Will Visit East Stroudsburg College

SOCIAL anthropologist and African specialist, William B. Schwab, will visit campus at the East Stroudsburg State College, on an invitation from Dr. John C. Appel, head of the World Cultural Affairs committee.

Schwab will spend Jan. 29 and 30 at ESSC addressing classes, assemblies and an open meeting of the PSEA the evening of the 29th to which members in the Stroudsburg area are invited.

"We are fortunate to get Mr. Schwab here — he is presently teaching in a neighboring university, Temple — because African affairs experts are hard to find, and, as you know, our college has been designated a repository of information on East and South Africa, as well as on Israel," Dr. Appel points out.

Recipient of Grants

Schwab is a fellow of the American Anthropologist Assn., of the Royal (British) Anthropologist Society and has had grants from the Ford Foundation, the National Science Foundation and the British Social Studies Society. On these grants he has traveled, lived and studied extensively in East, South and West Africa.

"Africa In Transition" is the title of the speech he will deliver to the student assembly. When visiting various social studies classes he will cover race relation, religion, economics and the present degree of maturity in Africa. Tentatively, his speech to the PSEA on the evening of Jan. 29 will consider the methodology of anthropology as applied to teaching geography and social studies.

Roseto Republicans Hear Rep. Schweiker

ROSETO— United States Representative Richard S. Schweiker, of the 13th District Montgomery County, told some 200 celebrating Republicans at a victory dinner in the Martocci-Capbianco American Legion Home, here Saturday night that the way is now paved for a Republican victory to elect a governor in November.

He stated that the type of victory and vigor shown in the Slate Belt communities has pointed the way that it can be done.

"Only if the Republicans in Pennsylvania demonstrate this same vigor and hard work that the Slate Belt Republicans did last November can we take advantage of the mail-administration of the big-city boss rule now running our state government in Harrisburg," said Schweiker.

He further complimented Northampton County GOP chairman Henry Ragot for his part in aiding the greatest Republican victory in the Slate Belt in 16 years.

Special recognition was given to the district leader namely—Armon M. Williams of the Bangor area covering Roseto, Bangor, Washington Twp. and East Bangor; Paul Hayes of the Mt. Bethel, Portland areas and Robert Budge of the Pen Argyl, Plainfield Twp., Wind Gap area.

These leaders also introduced the forty-eight victorious candidates in the Slate Belt last November.

Miss Kathryn Sabatine, committeewoman in Roseto, presented the all-victorious Republican ticket in Roseto.

Three of the Slate Belts five boroughs elected Republican mayors last November.

Namely, George, Glaquinto, Roteso; Christie Snyder, Pen Argyl; and William Starner, of Portland, who was the first GOP mayor in the history of that community.

Joseph Policelli, recently named school director in Roseto, served as master of ceremonies and also presented Richard Grifo, Easton, former county solicitor who made the introductions.

Among those presented by Grifo: Jackson Sigmon, Bethlehem and Mrs. Shirley Correll Liebermann of Easton, national committee members.

Congressman Schweiker was introduced by Mrs. Frances Chase, Northampton County vice chairman. The invocation was offered by Rev. Richard Loper, C. M. principal of Pius X High School and the benediction was offered by the Rev. Charles R. Starzer, pastor of the Roseto Presbyterian Church.

1962 Feed Grain Support Prices Are Announced

PRICES for the 1962 crops of feed grains, according to Donald Reish, Chairman of the Monroe County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, will be supported at the following national average support levels:

Corn, $1.20 per bushel average for all grades; barley, 93 cents per bushel for grade No. 2 or better; grain sorghum, $1.93 per hundredweight for grade No. 2 or better; oats, 62 cents per bushel for grade No. 3; and rye, $1.02 per bushel for grade No. 2 or better, or grading No. 3 on test weight only.

The Chairman pointed out that these supports are the same as the 1961-crop supports. The 1962 support prices reflect approximately 74 percent of the January parity for corn, barley, and oats; 69 percent for rye; and about 78 percent for grain sorghum.

Feed grain legislation provides that the Secretary of Agriculture may set the support level for corn at not less than 65 percent of parity for the 1962 crop. The $1.20-per-bushel support price, Mr. Reish said, was determined as the price that would effectively meet the objectives of the feed grain program.

Support for the other feed grains requires consideration of several factors, including supply in relation to demand, the ability of the Commodity Credit Corporation to dispose of stocks acquired under price support, the ability and willingness of producers to keep supplies in line with demand, feed value of grains in relation to corn, and support levels for other commodities.

After considering these factors, the support prices for barley, oats, and rye were set directly at their feeding value relationship to corn, and the support price for grain sorghum was set at 90 percent of the feed value of corn — the same as for 1961.

In his announcement of the 1962-crop feed grain price-supported levels, Secretary of Agriculture Freeman said that as a result of the extension of the feed grain program to 1962 crops, farmers "have the opportunity not only to hold the ground they gained in 1961 but to make further advances toward the goal of higher farm income and lower Federal expenses. Participation in the 1961 feed grain program was great enough to bring about a reversal in the buildup of feed grain stocks in Government hands for the first time in 9 years despite record yields.

"The 1962 price-support levels should make it possible for us to maintain and increase the farm income gain of 1961, while we move forward with long-range revisions of our farm laws which will permit further progress toward our goal of parity in income for farm people."

It's a small wonder!

How many times have you seen a little boy trying to repair something; a bike, his toy car, a pair of roller skates, an old clock? Most of us have, and, in most cases, to Daddy's dismay when he starts wondering about the whereabouts of his tools. We must agree however, the most amazing thing of all is the way this little fellow does the seemingly impossible for one his size.

This too, applies to those of us who have experienced the many replies received from their last Daily Record Want Ad. For those of you who have not tried a want ad, you should, today! Then you will agree the results from Daily Record Family Want Ads are truly "a small wonder"!

PV High School Student Wins In Statewide Contest

JOHN C. Mills Jr., Brodheadsville, was selected the winner of the 15th annual Veterans of Foreign Wars "Voice of Democracy" contest.

The Brodheadsville youth is the first Monroe County pupil ever selected state winner of the contest.

Mills is 16 years old, a junior in Pleasant Valley Joint High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mills Sr. is supervising principal of the jointure.

Mills' entry, "What Freedom Means To Me" was one of 12,000 entries in the state and through the process of elimination was one of 45 selected for the final selection.

His was judged the winner by a panel of 11 judges assembled in Scranton.

As state winner he will receive a $100 war bond and a three-day, all expense paid trip to Washington, D. C., where he will compete with the winners from the 50 states.

Awards on the national level range $500 to $1,500 scholarships. He will be in Washington, D. C., Feb. 3, 4, and 5 for the competition.

Mills said, "I am thrilled to have been selected as winner in the state and honored that I will have the chance to compete in the national contest.

"I do feel that I owe a great deal to John Sebring, who is my English teacher, for without his guidance I doubt if I would have gotten this far," he continued.

Sebring is head of the English department in the school and has encouraged the students to do much creative writing. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sebring, Tannersville. Walter is Monroe County Assistant Superintendent of Schools.

Mills said that a tape recording of his writing was made in the school, along with several other entries, and through a contest in the school his was selected to be sent on to the state level.

The essay was judged locally on three points; content, originality and delivery.

In his talk Mills points out that freedom is his most precious possession and that it is not a possession of unit meaning but a possession of many meanings.

He continues, "Freedom to me means that I must not enjoy it without carrying my full load of the responsibility necessary to keep it.

"I must be constantly on guard for the preservation of my rights and the rights of other people. Freedom is never attained easily," he continued.

Mills will graduate with the Class of 1963 and is preparing to enter Lafayette College as a premedical student and upon graduation continue to study for a medical degree.

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22—Payment of $15,141.93 to General Hospital of Monroe County, East Stroudsburg, as partial state aid reimbursement has been approved by the Auditor General and forwarded to the Department of Public Welfare for certification.

The money represents 75 per cent of the payment due the local institution for the four-month period ended September 30, 1961. (A four month period is being used in this instance instead of the usual three due to the "extra" month in the current 13-month fiscal year—the "extended" fiscal year having been adopted to permit Pennsylvania's fiscal year to coincide with the federal fiscal year.)

The payment is designed to cover in part the cost of free patient care provided by the hospital during the period for those indigents unable to pay their own bills.

Earlier in the month the AG's department approved payment of $14,553.10 to the hospital as the entire subsidy for the three-month period ended May 31.

Safety Incentive

Many comments have come to our desk concerning the use of unmarked cars by State Police, not only in our state but in some adjacent states. The usual reaction is one of indignation, although, when it all boils down, it seems to be the driver inside most folks protesting the unfairness of not being able to tell a police officer from a teenage demon at 50 yards.

It is almost as if the law doesn't trust the man behind the wheel on the highway. They think we slown down on purpose when we spy a trooper and then speed beyond the legal limits the moment he disappears from sight.

If that's what they think, it's only because they have pretty substantial proof that they are right!

The nasty thoughts a driver may feel when he's waved to the side of the road from an unmarked trooper car are only an expression of self-condemnation. If the driver will admit it, the person he's really angry with is himself. He got caught.

Of course, the system of policing our highways can be criticized from the standpoint of the one who is caught. There are lots of violations unseen by authorities. It is theoretically possible for the person who speeds for the first time to be caught and the man who speeds every day to escape indefinitely.

As long as traffic law enforcement must be on a spot basis there will be temporary inequities but such things have a habit of evening up.

In honesty, it must be admitted that the threat of unmarked police cars on patrol would figure to be a benefit to safety and law enforcement. Sirens and flashing lights should be part of the unmarked car's equipment to help achieve the right of way for answering an emergency. An opinion is that the days of the well-marked police car serving as a warning to more than those immediately behind it are gone.

The marked car in sight commands respect, the unmarked car should get us thinking in terms of respect for our own pocketbook and self-esteem, and that could be more important to safety than anything else.

If we violate the law, it doesn't matter whether we are apprehended by a marked or an unmarked car. The important thing is that, when we first made the decision to violate the law, we were guilty of the violation whether or not we are ever caught.

'I'll Buy It—But I'll Also Steer It!'

Opinions Of Other Editors

No Threat To Tenure

Spokesmen for certain school boards throughout the state who are dissatisfied with the school district reorganization plan enacted into law last year have come up with a variety of arguments—some valid, some without basis—in support of their demands for repeal or drastic revision of the act.

They contend that operation of the plan, when all required consolidations have been completed by July, 1965, will give the State Department of Public Instruction too much power and that the boards governing the merged districts will lose some of their local control. They find fault with the establishment of a minimum of 4,000 pupils for a school district, although the law does permit an enrollment as low as 2,500 in certain circumstances.

These are points which may be arguable. But the opponents of the act had also advanced the contention that as a result of school district consolidations, teachers' tenure rights would be jeopardized. Governor Lawrence himself took occasion to scotch this argument. He recently told the Pennsylvania State Education Association, representing the great majority of the state's public school teachers, that he had been assured by Attorney General David Stahl that "in no regard whatever will the operation of the law affect the present tenure of teachers and other professional personnel."

It may well be that as the reorganization program moves ahead it will be found that the 1961 act could be amended on certain points. But spreading misinformation and misrepresentations about the law as it stands is a questionable approach by those who are not in sympathy with its objectives.

The Radical Right

Everybody who can read is an expert about something; whoever can write regards himself as an outstanding authority. In fact, when it comes to Russian and Communism, the experts and authorities grow so numerous that one wonders whether there is any literate person who did not ghost - write for Lenin and Stalin!

However, there are a few who do know what they are talking about. They have a long background; they can read in languages other than English; they have a clear knowledge of terminology; they are of sufficient stature not to be inclined to bluff. Among those whose judgement as well as knowledge is to be relied upon is Eugene Lyons, a senior editor of the "Reader's Digest." Such a movement as Communism has much to do with words and ideas and Lyons has had at least 40 years of intimate knowledge of this movement both in Russia and the United States. He has never been tempted to opportunism.

The new-comer to a world-wide revolutionary movement is usually astounded by what he finds and having a naive background becomes absorbed by emotionalism. The Communist movement has not conquered so large a part of the Earth without a purpose, a plan, a method of operation. Excitement is no answer. What is required is cold study of problems. Those who rush into efforts, without knowledge or background but with enthusiasm and excitement, usually are so ridiculous that they assist the Communists and their allies to make headway.

Eugene Lyons has written an article for the "New Guard," the publication of the "Young Americans for Freedom" on the subject of "Anti-Communism and the Radical Right" which is thoughtful and significant and which separates his expert thinking from the nonsense of those who raise huge sums of money to fight Communism without knowing what it is and how it is to be fought. Lyons cites an example of the absurdities that develop among those who speak without study:

"RECENTY I heard a local Louisiana politician, on TV, inveigh against integration by Federal edict. Right or wrong, that was his privilege. But when he went on to denounce the whole business as a Moscow-engineered plot, he was indulging in crude and dangerous demagoguery. The fact that the communists seek to exploit any difficulties in free countries, including racial conflicts, does not make them the authors of every crisis."

The "Extreme Right" is, of course, necessarily anti-Communist. It may also be serving some cause which could be subversive. It is necessary to analyze purposes and statements. When, for instance, it is discovered that the language of a Rightist organization is anti-Semitic, or anti-Negro or anti-labor union it is necessary to discover which is the motivating force, opposition to Communism or opposition to something else. And it must be discovered whether this is an idealistic cause or a money-making proposition. Those who accept money from one group to give the impression that they favor another cause, are wreckers who cannot be trusted and should be exposed.

Lyons says:

"Conservatism includes anti-communism, but anti-communism decidedly does not include conservatism. It's in a different frame or reference. Our purpose, it seems to me, should be to enlist all genuine enemies of communism in the common cause, however they may disgree on other matters."

But no movement can accept those who join a cause for no other purpose than to earn a living thereby. It was a trick of the Communists in the 1930's to get jobs for those who were willing to associate with them. John Garfield once told me that the first step on the ladder of success for him in Hollywood was to be invited to dinner by Charlie Chaplin. But that ought not to be enough. One ought to believe sincerely in a creed or oppose it sincerely and the first evidence of sincerity is the effort to be knowledgeable.

In this country, back in the 1920's and 1930's there was a group of anti-Communists, among them conservatives and liberals, Republicans and Democrats Jews and Christians who took the unpopular stand and were plagued for their effort. They fought hard and at great sacrifice. Eugene Lyons was one of them. A younger generation which is being led astray by emotional opportunists and money-grubbers would be wise to read Lyon's article and take guidance which comes from ex perience and wisdom.

The Pennsylvania Story

Important Point

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — If Pennsylvania's lawmakers act with the speed expected of them in their special session this week, it most certainly will clearly demonstrate to one and all just how fast a legislative session "could" move!

But there is an even equally more important point this week's special underscores—a point lawmakers themselves would do well to seriously consider.

This week's special session, fortunately called by the governor to run concurrently with the regular 1962 session, involves the enactment of strictly "must" legislation—that is, legislation reapportioning the state's 30 congressional districts into 27.

(The special session falls in the "must" category because without it no redistricting law could be enacted by the February 20 deadline—with the result that all of Pennsylvania's 27 congressmen due to be elected "at large" rather than by specific or individual districts.)

The special session that had to be called by the governor to enact this congressional redistricting legislation points up somewhat dramatically the tremendous folly of having limited the every-other-year (even - year) "regular" sessions to fiscal affairs subjects only.

At this very moment for example there are a host of critical items of a "non-fiscal affairs" nature that should be taken up this year by lawmakers—but which because of the restriction placed on even-year sessions must now go over to the 1963 legislative session.

The current redistricting "special session" called into being last week by Mr. Lawrence and convening today is illustrative of one of those "must" items that however cannot wait for consideration next year—the difference being that it is a "super must-must" subject.

Under the present pattern the legislative branch in effect has turned over a portion of its responsibility to the executive branch—a move most certainly never intended by the framers of the constitution under which the Keystone State operates today.

This "turn over" is clearly evident by the very special session convening this week. In other words, if the governor (the executive branch) had not wished to call lawmakers into special session to act on this pressing legislative responsibility, he could have ignored the entire thing.

Thus the pattern follows—the executive branch is assured of "haven and sanctuary" during even numbered years of sessioning. The All-powerful legislative branch in such years can not consider subjects that are its immediate responsibility (other than fiscal affairs)—or to do so must await the pleasure of the executive branch, and most certainly an administration is not going to call a special session to consider any subject that might be embarrassing (politically or other-wise) to an executive branch!

It is just as absurd as trying to place a limit on the length of a session. The Lawrence Administration has hotly favored limiting the length of sessions, preferably to around three months. (What happens to a "crisis' arising in the fourth or eleventh or twelfth month?)

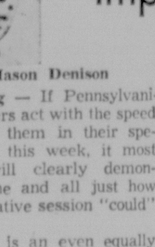

Of course such a limit would add further to getting the legislative branch out of the hair of the executive branch—but again such certainly is not the intent of Pennsylvania's constitutional decree. Rather it is just the opposite!

The special session convening today has its part to play—and if the congressional redistricting legislation is cleared in the minimal five days expected, it will show what can be done on the legislative enactment front, speedwise.

But the special session also points up most dramatically a damning legislative shortchange "executive branch policy" supporters never should have been permitted to foist on the (legislatively-represented) public in the first place!

The Allen-Scott Report

Killed By Censors

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Senators investigating the "muzzling" of military officers will open their hearings tomorrow by questioning Admiral Arleigh Burke, outspoken former Chief of Naval Operations, about the hard-hitting, anti - Communist speech President Kennedy wouldn't permit him to give.

Entitled the "Siver Quill," the controversial speech was to have been given by Admiral Burke just a year ago this week at a Washington dinner sponsored by the National Business Publications.

Senator John Stennis, D, Miss., chairman of the investigating Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee, plans to publish the full text of the censored speech despite White House objections.

He and Senator Strom Thurmond, D, S.C., are going to air the full story of how the President "killed" the speech when Admiral Burke, now retired but serving on a Pentagon panel of distinguished citizens to assess troop-information programs, took the address directly to the White House after Secretary of State Rusk flatly refused to clear it.

As exclusively reported in this column on October 30, the President told Admiral Burke:

"While I agree with almost everything you have in this speech, I'm going to ask you not to give it. Secretary Rusk and his experts on Russia are opposed to its being delivered at this time (January 27, 1961). They say it will upset relations."

In his testimony, Admiral Burke will tell the subcommittee that he accepted his commander-in-chief's ruling as a "good soldier" should, although vigorously disagreeing with it.

While fully supporting civilian control over the military and their right to censor the speeches of military men, Admiral Burke soft-pedaling the fight against Communism in speeches given by military officers or any other official of U.S. government.

He will warn—as he tried to in his censored speech—that in dealing with Communist leaders in the Kremlin "it must be made clear—that we do not like—not will we submit to any nation pushing us around."

Admiral Burke will take the position that by delivering hard-hitting, anti-Communist speeches he was carrying out "a 1958 National Security Council directive that calls for the utilization of military personnel in a campaign designed to give the public a better appreciation of the enemy — international Communism."

He will fully support the subcommittee's investigation to determine the "reasons" for censoring the speeches.

The Pattern—Senator Stennis' investigators, in studying more than 200 censored speeches have established that the principal target of the State Department censors is harsh characterizations of Communist regimes, and all references to military liberation of satellite countries.

Illustrative of this pattern are the following:

A speech by General Herbert B. Powell, Commanding General, U.S. Continental Army Command, in which the following paragraph was deleted: "The answer has been written for the world to see in the blood of martyrs and the ink of genius. In the Ukraine, East Germany, Poland, China, Hungary and other Communist-dominated slave states, brave men have given their lives to show us the weakness behind the facade."

Admiral Harry Felt, U.S. Commander-in-Chief in the Pacific, had his statement, prepared for Foreign Affairs Committee last June, riddled by the censors. were these warnings of Communist strategy:

"The Communist strategy is one of subversion and armed revolution supported from outside the target nation . . . Guerrilla warfare is coordinated with espionage, sabotage, terrorism and mass demonstrations. Orgainzation is all important. Their campaign is characterized by infiltration and hit-and-run actions, planned according to a set pattern. It can be defeated, as proven by Magsaysay in the Philippines and by the British Commonwealth in Malaya. To do so, we must have superior organization and must be willing to pay a price.

"The Communists are not conducting warfare in the conventional sense. Economic warfare is being waged, not for trade purposes but as a lure for political designs. It is warfare involving diplomatic threats, nuclear blackmail, development of hatreds, the Big Lie technique. It is psychological warfare to probe and manipulate a rash of tensions—to divide us—to confuse us and cause us to do nothing—to get American power to go home, using exclusively conventional means."

In answer to these censorship charges, State and Defense Department officials are planning to stand firm on their right to censor the speeches by military men.

They have instructions from the White House to stress plans for new procedures and policies in troop indoctrination, including basic instruction in the threat of Communism in various forms.

Also, they plan to submit to strong anti-Communist speeches that President Kennedy and members of his cabinet have made since taking office.

Inside You And Yours

Watch The Flu Fly By

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Watch out! The flu (influenza) is flying again!

Four years ago it was type A—Asian. This year it's type B influenza virus.

For a few days after catching the flu, you still feel well. And yet, every cough and sneeze spreads thousands of germs.

Suddenly you shiver and shake, and fever skyrockets. Your legs hurt and your back aches.

You can't eat. Your head throbs. You poop out completely. You cough, sneeze and your throat feels like sandpaper.

The thermometer works like an influenza report card. Mild flu rates only 102 degrees; severe, 104 degrees.

Prolonged Weakness

Ordinary flu fades within days, although it may leave you weak on your pins for weeks. Fever, cough and other troubles that linger longer usually signal complications. Other germs often jump on the bandwagon when flu lowers your resistance.

Infection can spread down to the lungs, up to the sinuses, back to the ears and across to the neck (swollen glands).

No miracle drug can cure flu. Rest in bed. Drink lots of fluids. And let aspirin calm feverish aches and pains while the infection burns itself out.

Soothing steam and warm gargles quiet irritated throat lining. Nose drops can open stuffy nostrils. If you suffer severe flu, your doctor may prescribe antibiotic germ-killers to prevent or cure complications.

Go Slow

Don't pop out of bed the first day. You're still an easy target for other germs. Resistance builds slowly.

Ask your doctor about flu shots, especially if an epidemic seems headed your way. The sooner, the better! The vaccine takes time to work.

Once you have this temporary protection, you can lean back and watch the rest of the flu fly by!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

From The L. A. Times: "Four men—two of them elderly medical doctors and one a chiropractor—go on trial today . . . charged with operating a cnacer cure clinic which assertedly bilked its patients of about $1 milion . . . district attorneys charged with operating a cancer paid up to $1,000 each since the founding of the clinic in 1957 for the cure of cancer under the so-called 'Hoxey Formula' which has been branded worthless for such treatment by the U.S.'

And Which this column exposed and put out of business.

FRom Variety's front page: "To paraphrase John Cameron Swayze, what kind of a show biz year had 1961 been?"

The famous newsman's name is John K. M. McCaffery.

From Variety's front page: "Said Joan Crawford sadly, 'that is the story of Hollywood. As hardened as I am to the spuriousness of this town, I got quite a jolt last Summer when I came home for five days. Not one soul called me up'."

Some movie stars don't appreciate being lucky.

From Ernie Kovacs' obits: "He was a friend of every big actor in Hollywood."

And to every little one, too.

Theater Guild exec Lawrence Langner's report: "The dramatic critic problem has been solved in Paradiso (near Bogota) by the simple expedient of making drama critics pay for their seats out of their own pockets and waiting three days before writing their reviews. Any critic who writes more than three bad reviews is automatically blacklisted for putting actors, dramatists and stagehands out of work. As a result the best drama notices in the world are written."

Why are they called Critics?

From an editorial: "It is rather difficult to be optimistic these days. There are warmakers overseas and troublemakers over here."

No place is perfect. The Garden of Eden had a snake.

TV critic Cecil Smith megaton'd: "I would have been happy to have seen three men hanged. Namely, producer Leland Hayward, writer A. J. Russell and director Franklin Schaffner. They were primarily responsible for the greatest misuse of talent and waste of material and time I can off-hand recall. They took Walter Lord's blithe best-seller 'The Good Years' and cranked out a show that was incredibly dull, witness, stodgy . . . a deadly bore."

Mr. Langner, meet a critic!

From a H'wood column commenting on Joan Bennett's divorce: "There is no one else in the life of the woman who has been described as America's most attractive grandmother."

Are you speaking of Joan Bennett or Marlene Dietrich?

Washington correspondents Allen and Scott reported: "At Castro's 3rd anniversary of his victory some 30 Yugoslav officers, about one-third of them airmen, were spotted in the reviewing stand. Powerful confirmation that they are in Cuba to train Castro's jet pilots. The U. S. to date has given Tito about 4 billion."

Robbins Answers

(Ed. Note: Following is an answer to a letter from Donald Sommers which appeared in Saturday's Daily Record, and addressed to him through this column.)

Dear Mr. Sommers:

I note your open letter as it appeared in the Daily Record, Saturday, Jan. 20th. Since it was delivered and addressed to me in the Dear Mr. Editor column it is assumed you want my answer by the same method of communication. That is a good idea and I willingly comply.

First, let me make it clear that I do not intend to discuss, in the columns of our local newspaper, the real issue involved i. e. has the Pocono Mountain Jointure Board conducted its management of the Jointure by the minority rule at the expense of the taxpayers?

It is assumed by myself and all taxpayers concerned that the Jointure Board of Directors will give these taxpayers of our Jointure the opportunity to investigate their method of management of the past. Their secretary recently publically promised the same. Of course, this investigation would be open to all Jointure taxpayers and the press.

It is quqite obvious that you are not familiar with all the facts concerning the decision you call unanimous.

I agree that "most School board members are dedicated." My statements are herewith requoted from the Daily Record emphasize my conviction—"Robbins said the majority members had worked to save money, to lower taxes," "Let me (Robbins) tell you how the hands of our sincere, hard working, honest school board (members) are tied," and so, it must be understood that by far the majority of our Jointure school board members are not affected by my charges and therefore my "treatment" will work to their benefit.

I have never heard, during the approximately 25 years we have resided in Pocono Township of our local school boards need to appoint members "simply because no person has had enough interest to run for the office."

Your suggestion that I "become a member of a local school board" and that I "would be welcome to help plan" and manage our local schools is much appreciated. I can assure you I would be most happy to give freely of my time and abilities in such capacity, and, by the way, for the benefit of the majority.

Perhaps it would be a good idea for you to contact the President of our Pocono Township School Board in Tannersville and ask him how his local school board decided to fill the vacancy when Dr. Horn resigned. You can be sure you will learn that the decision was NOT influenced by the desire or the expressed wish of the MAJORITY local taxpayers.

Very truly yours,
Don Robbins, Sr.

Dear Abby

He's In Revolt!

Dear Abby: I wonder what has come over my husband. We have been married almost twenty years and he has started to act rather peculiar lately. He goes out alone on week-ends, all shaved and cleaned up and doesn't come home until early in the morning. When I asked him where he's been, he says it's none of my business. He is so afraid I will look in his wallet he sleeps with his pants on all night. I don't like to fight in front of the children, but I would like to have it out with him. I think he has somebody else. How can I find out without asking him?

WANTS THE TRUTH

Dear Wants: What's the matter with asking him? A man who sleeps with his pants on all night has really got both feet into it. Maybe his head needs examining as well as his wallet. Don't let this peculiar behavior continue unexplained.

Dear Abby: I am a 27-year-old mother of three. This may sound silly but I would like to look my age. Salesmen come to my door and ask to speak to my mother. Recently, at a dance, a 19-year-old kid kept making eyes at me. He thought I was my husband's kid sister. This kind of thing goes on all the time. I dread going anywhere where liquor is served because I must always show proof of my age, and then sometimes they don't believe me. They all say it is my baby face and slim figure. What can I do, Abby, short of wearing old ladies' dresses and dyeing my hair gray?

LOOKS YOUNG

Dear Looks: Your "problem" would be a welcome one to many. For the present, dress your age, act it, and count your blessings. Time will solve your "problem."

Dear Abby: Last Friday I called my sister and invited her and her husband to come for Sunday dinner at one in the afternoon. She said she'd ask her husband and call me back. At 1:45 on Sunday she called and said she "forgot" about it, and asked if we still wanted them. I said the roast was in the oven, and if they came at 2:00 P.M. it would be fine. She said they were just eating a dinner of spareribs as they had his brother and his wife for dinner, but they would all be hungry again about 7:00 P.M. and could they come then.

Wanting to keep peace in the family, I told them to come at 7:00 P.M. They came at 7:00 and ate and ran, and I was in the kitchen doing dishes at 11 at night. Should I have let her push me around this way, or should I have told her to go jump in the lake?

PUSHED AROUND

Dear Pushed: The object of inviting guests for dinner is not merely to "feed" them. It's the fun and sociability of it. If it were only a matter of quieting the hunger pains, you could have sent them some sandwiches and told them to stay home. I think you were pushed too far.

Taxpayers Responsible For Income Tax Data

EACH FEDERAL income taxpayer is responsible for the facts and figures entered in the return he signs. This is true, even if it is prepared with the assistance of the Internal Revenue Service, Harold Watkins, Acting District Director of the Scranton District, said today.

In advising taxpayers of this responsibility, Mr. Watkins said, we must remind them that they are responsible under law for all entries and all supporting documents in their returns, no matter who prepares it.

The Internal Revenue, he said, welcomes returns prepared by competent professional persons; but such assistors, in many instances, can only rely upon information provided by the taxpayer.

The taxpayers themselves are the persons primarily and finally responsible, he said.

New Thermostat Also Shows Weather Conditions In Home

THERE'S a new look—and a host of new features—in home heating thermostats this winter.

Not only have these very important controls become stylized to blend with any room decor, but a new wall-type thermostat just introduced is a complete "comfort control center" for the entire house.

Called the Homart Comfort Center, the new thermostat incorporates a barometer, a thermometer, a humidity indicator, a warning light which indicates when the furnace filter requires attention, and a precision thermostat for furnace control in one attractive unit.

Styled with the Sheer Look and finished in gold, gray and white, the Homart Comfort Center measures just seven and one-half inches wide by four and three-fourth inches high. It can be easily and quickly installed by the average homeowner using just a screw driver.

The new thermostat is designed to provide homeowners with an easy-to-read, complete report on weather and atmospheric conditions in the house while giving accurate control and filter condition on the heating plant.

The Homart Comfort Center is available exclusively at Sears, Roebuck and Co. retail stores.

Keep 'Em

SAVE COPIES of The Daily Record for a week or two before starting an interior paint job. They will come in handy to cover the floor and furniture while you're applying the paint to the walls or ceiling. Also save the cardboards that come with shirts washed at the laundry. They're useful as shields to prevent paint from getting on the walls when you paint the woodwork.

Draftless Heat

HYDRONIC heat is ideal for the home with small children who like to play on the floor. Whether the heat is distributed by baseboards or by pipe coils in the floor or ceiling, the floors are always warm. Toddlers can play on the floors without danger of catching cold from drafts, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Modern Water Closets Function Efficiently

VISITORS returning from Europe are likely to comment on the superiority of American-made plumbing fixtures as compared with those found in bathrooms in other countries.

Returning travelers are particularly critical of the water closets in European bathrooms. They are likely to cite the difficulties they encountered in attempting to make these fixtures function with the smoothness and efficiency of their American counterparts.

It is true, as travelers have discovered, that American manufacturers of plumbing fixtures have concentrated on the making of a water closet that will perform its function with efficiency, with the minimum noise, and the utmost in sanitation, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

At the same time American manufacturers have placed great stress on the improvement of the outward appearance of the fixture. Modern closet combinations are made with a pleasing symmetry of design. Practically all models are assembled as compact, close-coupled units. Not only does this enhance the appearance of the fixture, but it makes it easier to clean.

Another new American development is the wall-hung residential water closet. With this type of fixture, the homemaker can have wall to wall carpeting in the bathroom or powder room. She can easily run the vacuum cleaner under the bowl.

Paneling Pointers To Aid Anyone

WHETHER you are a do-it-yourself genius or the type of person who would rather call in professional help, there are a few pointers on preparing paneling and installing it that any home-owner would be wise to follow.

First of all, have the lumber delivered a week or ten days early, and store it in the room where it is to be used. This will allow it to adjust to the climatic conditions of the room before it is nailed into place, assuring a long-lasting fit.

The Western Pine Association recommends that the paneling be stacked horizontally with separating sticks between the boards. This is called "Stickering," and it allows the air to circulate freely between the boards. Naturally, the lumber also should be protected from dirt, fingerprints and scuffing, because these marks are hard to erase.

Sanding comes after the lumber has been cut to size, and the care in doing a good job cannot be over-emphasized. Many people will accept automatically careful sanding down of a rare or expensive wood, but when they buy an economical species — and any of the 11 woods from the western pine region are excellent for paneling — they may be inclined to rush into the finishing process without giving their lumber a really good sanding. This is a mistake, because these fine and easy-to-work woods finish magnificently when care is taken.

Care in applying the finish is equally important. Stain or a brush-on, wipe-off pigmented finish should be applied before the panelling is installed so that no raw wood will look out from hard-to-reach corners once the paneling is in place. The Western Pine Association points out that stain is easiest to apply when the paneling is laid out horizontally at a convenient working level. If a clear finish is being used it should be put on after installation, because such a gloss finish could be marred during installation.

For vertical paneling, nailing strips must be put up horizontally to hold the paneling. These are called "furring strips" and besides one at the top and another halfway down the wall (usually one by two, one by three, or one by four inch stock) an extra wide strip, say one by eight, should be used at the bottom.

This last strip must be wider than the baseboard so that when the baseboard is put into place there still will be enough surface above it to which to nail the bottom end of the paneling. When paneling is used horizontally, it is nailed directly to the two by four studs.

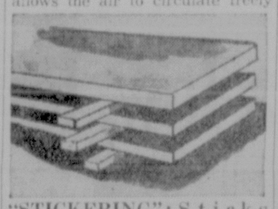

Blind nailing is another touch that helps achieve a professional look. Wherever possible, and particularly at eye level, nails should be driven into the tongue of each panel so that they will be covered by the groove of the panel installed after it.

This will give a virtually nail-free look to the wall. The only nails that might be exposed would be those in the corners, and these can be countersunk and the holes filled. Yellow beeswax often is used or a tinted, non-shrinking crack filler is satisfactory. If putty is chosen, the holes should first be dabbed with some wood sealer. Then putty mixed with some of the stain can be used to fill the hole. The sealer will prevent the putty oils from leaving an oily ring around the hole.

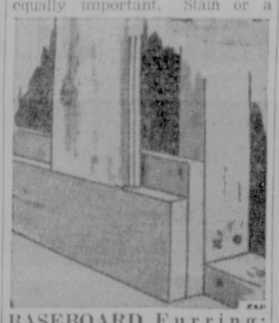

Mouldings will do much to give any room a finished look once the paneling has been installed. Professionals employ them as much as do-it-yourselfers, and the homeowner should not hesitate to use them. They cover discrepancies in carpentry and add solidity and form — especially in the case of built-ins which can look "boxy" and home-made without mouldings.

Many mouldings are made of western pine region lumber, and these can be matched to the paneling. People will find that western pine mouldings are carefully manufactured in uniform patterns and are will dried.

Home-owners who, as a final step, want a long-lasting and easy-to-carefor surface over the stain, or those who want a clear finish on natural wood, may do the following: apply a coat of lacquer and sand this, when it has dried, with 6/0 paper. A minimum of two coats of clear varnish, lacquer, or shellac should go over this, the paneling being sanded between coats and rubbed down after the final coat with 3/0 steel wool. A good paste wax then may be applied.

"STICKERING": Sticks should be placed between boards for a week or ten days prior to paneling installation so that the wood may adjust to room conditions. This helps to insure a lasting good fit.

BASEBOARD Furring: Lumber paneling should be installed flush with the baseboard. The bottom furring strip therefore should be wider than the baseboard by several inches and paneling nailed to it.

CORNERS: Adjacent paneling boards on an "outside" corner should be beveled so that their outer edges form a right angle. With "inside" corners it is necessary only to cut the pattern from a panel and to butt it against the last panel on the adjacent wall.

Brodheadsville — What people on farms can and should do about civil defense was the theme of the movie shown by Arthur Ifft, County Agricultural Extension Agent, at the meeting of the Mineola Grange.

Henry Hoffman reported on Historical Parts of Brodheadsville, past and present.

At the meeting it was reported that Peter Serfass, a member, is in the Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia. Members are asked to send cards.

Bridges From Grades To High School Are Studied By Curriculum Committee

An important factor in the good adjustment of students at Stroud Union High School is the part parents and school play in seventh grade orientation, Alfred Munson, high school principal, told members of the elementary curriculum study group at their meeting at the Arlington Heights School.

Raymond Serfass, guidance counselor, outlined the formal indoctrination set up in Stroud Union School district: 1) spring visitation by Serfass and two seventh grade students to all the sixth grades in the district to acquaint them with the Junior High activities; 2) a personal letter from the principal to the parents of all students who will enter the coming year; 3) orientation day before the opening of school when new students are familiarized with the school, their groupings and others in the same units; and 4) the opening day of school when eighth grade monitors escort the new students to classrooms, lunchroom, gym.

Serfass stressed the completeness of there records which accompany each child, with teacher comments from kindergarten through the sixth grade. These, with all monthly grades, testing returns and the psychological and health reports are all part of each child's permanent school record.

He distributed booklets for parents of students entering seventh grade: "A Guide to Good Study Habits" and "A Guide for Teenagers," the latter prepared jointly by the students and the Stroud Union PTA to set up a safe and acceptable social code.

Ralph Knauff, principal of Clearview and Arlington Heights Elementary Schools, emphasized the correlation between elementary and secondary programs in the district. All through the grades, the emphasis is on presenting readiness to achieve.

One of the items discussed at great length was the use, importance and validity of the I. Q. ratings. Roger Dunning, supervisor of elementary education in the district, told the group. "An educator uses the I. Q. tests as an M. D. uses a stethescope, as a yardstick and a guide.

Recent unfavorable publicity given to the entire I. Q. testing procedure he attributed primarily to errors and inefficiencies of group rather than individual testing. In group testing, it is impossible to give proper evaluation, he said. In Stroud Union, Miss Eloise Bryan does individual I. Q. tests on all the students at regular intervals, and psychological factors are part of all I. Q. evaluations.

High School Grouping

Another topic discussed by the group was that of the high school grouping system. Munson said that students are grouped according to classroom relationships which make for comfortable association and greater achievement. This is done using the child's records as a guide and with the progress of the individual at its objective, he said.

There are no accelerated groups in the seventh grade. They are established in eighth grades and only after much consideration. There has been a recent steady improvement in reading skills in the whole system, he said, and emphasized that the progress of the school is based on the progress of the individual child.

Parents Role

The discussion closed with how parents can assist in making the adjustment to high school easier for their child. 1) Don't stress the change but consider it a continuation; 2) increase emotional readiness by a judicious increase in responsibilities and privileges at home; 3) Parents and their elementary children can attend many of the games, exhibits and other functions at the high school and gain a sense of pride in belongings.

Kindergarten In Barrett Next Year

Barrett — A round of applause from the Barrett Elementary PTA greeted Lloyd Peak's announcement that a kindergarten with transportation is a reality for the 1962-'63 school year. Peak is principal of the Barrett Elementary Center. The kindergarten classes will be held in that school.

Members of the group voted to purchase record players for the immediate use of the school.

Mrs. Robert Franklin, chairman of the piano committee, requested that anyone who has a usable piano they would wish to donate to the school may make arrangements by calling her at TE 9-9918.

The "Wedding Gown Revue" to be held on Feb. 14 in the school auditorium was reported as progressing smoothly by Mrs. John O'Neili. She reminded the group that all proceeds from the affair will go to the fund for purchasing books for the now empty library room.

Mrs. Charles DePue, Mrs. Ernest LaBar and Mrs. Donald Dyson membership chairmen, announced a membership of 198 to date. Memberships are still being taken, interested parties may contact either of the three women.

Miss Edna Eige and Walter Melnikoff reported from the Monroe County Council of Parent Teacher Association that the council was still working toward achieving a lobbyiest for the state association.

A panel discussion on "Homework", was moderated by David Guthrie. Teachers explaining the reasons for the lack of homework in the first three grades were: Miss Marjorie Beseceker, Mrs. James Arndt, Miss Ruth Henry and Robert Wolbert. Parents on the panel were: Mrs. David Toms, Mrs. Wright Gibson, Walter Melnikoff and Mrs. Donald Brown.

In intermediate grades, home work is necessary for drill purposes in acquiring essential skills and to enrich the school program. Ideal study conditions were presented, including good lighting, quiet, privacy and opportunity for the student to budget his time.

The fourth grade received the attendance award. Parents and teachers adjourned for informal discussions over coffee in the cafeteria.

School Defense On Program For M. S. PTA

How the Civil Defense Program has been worked out for the schools and in Middle Smithfield and the county will be outlined in detail at the meeting of the Middle Smithfield Parent Teachers Assn. tonight at 8 at the school.

Don Snyder, president, has called a meeting of the executive committee prior to the general meeting.

EXCHANGE STUDENT TOURS SIGNAL DEPOT — Nuala Downey an exchange student from New Zealand, helps display flag of her country on visit Thursday to Tobyhanna Signal Depot. Shown with her are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse S. Flory of East Stroudsburg, the couple she is staying with while studying at East Stroudsburg State College, and CWO-3 Robert McKeich, a former New Zealander now in the U. S. Army at Tobyhanna. After touring the depot, Miss Downey transmitted a radio message over the Military Affiliate Radio Station. She was assisted by John Stokes, MARS chief, Stroudsburg. Mrs. Heller President Of Crusaders

Bartonsville — Election of officers, for two year terms, was held when the Crusaders of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School held their January meeting at the parish house. Those elected were Mrs. Haviland Heller, president; Robert Field, Sr., vice president; Mrs. Robert Field, Sr., secretary; Mrs. Claude Cyphers, assistant secretary; Emma Dunbar, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Field, Jr., pianist; Claude Cyphers, chaplain.

The birthday bank was opened and the money contained therein was contributed to the church benevolent fund.

Haviland Heller and Robert Field, Sr., were appointed to purchase mirrors for the church.

Robert Field, Sr., led a lesson study on "Modern Science and the Ark of Noah." An interesting fact brought out was that the U.S.S. New Mexico was built on the scientific dimensions of Noah's Ark — six times as long as wide. Modern science figured them out for the U.S.S. New Mexico, but God revealed them to Noah!

Mr. and Mrs. Haviland Heller were named hosts for the February meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Sr.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cyphers, Mr. and Mrs. Haviland Heller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Sr., Mrs. Joseph Dunbar, Mrs. Verdon Frailey, Emma Dunbar, Diane Doll and Richie Field.

MORE TIME FOR YOURSELF!

The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store" A.B. Wyckoff STROUDSBURG, PA.

This has been a DAY! Early this morning (Friday) my telephone rang and Lee Eldredge greeted me. "We have the scroll," she said, "and we expect to be in Stroudsburg just about the time your radio program goes on from the Art Show. Will Mr. Wyckoff be there?"

To tell where the Mr. Wyckoff who is Papa of our store family will be at any given moment is difficult. He has a way of getting around! All I knew was that I had invited him to speak from the Art Show, and he had said perhaps he would . . . and I was sure he would not be in New York, since he had made his weekly jaunt into the city the day before. Ultimately everything worked out very nicely . . . the weather was beautiful, Lee and Allan arrived on schedule; Walter Wyckoff took charge of bringing his father to the broadcast, and we had the additional pleasure of a visit from Deane Uptegrove, the distinguished water colorist, and his very attractive wife.

The reason for the Eldredge visit had been kept secret from "Papa", so it was with surprise that he received a beautifully hand-lettered citation, conferred by the Tri-State Professional Artists Association, in appreciation of his efforts over the last twenty-five years to promote the fine arts in this area. The framed citation was signed by Allan, president of the group, who also made the presentation.

Later I had the pleasure of tape recording an interview with Mr. Uptegrove and the Eldredges for this morning's Wyckoff Shopper program. I do hope you'll be listening for all three of them are most interesting and well informed. I have known the Eldredges several years, and they are a splendid couple, but , just as Allan pointed out, I—like most people—was surprised by Deane Uptegrove after having become acquainted with his work. His water colors have a great delicacy which somehow does not hint of his very strong, masculine physique; the ruddy, outdoor quality of his countenance, and the vivid contrast between his silvery hair and his sparkling blue eyes. He is a former newspaperman who took up painting as a hobby, choosing water color because it is a medium calling for rapidity and his free time was limited.

Following lunch in our Tea Room, Walter and I accompanied our guests to the Pocono Art Center in East Stroudsburg so they might see the many fine paintings assembled there by Marcia and Jovan DeRocco. Marcia has a newly acquired painting of the Delaware Water Gap that all agreed is a priceless example of the Hudson River School, along with some wonderful primitives, an Alshemius, a Picasso, a Heiden and many more. All agreed that her foresight and hard work have turned the Old Stone House into an Art Center of which Monroe Countians can well be proud, and in the growth of which they may well take delight.

Yes, this has been quite a day! I am not an artist, and I didn't win any prizes at our Art Show, of course . . . but on my desk right this minute are several treasures for which I am deeply indebted. One is a small brass statue of Our Lady of Africa, for years the treasured possession of the late Bishop Thomas B. McLaughlin, S.T.D. which was given to me for my Madonna collection, so that a wider circle of persons might see and enjoy it. There are also two picture postcards, attached to one of which is a vial of water from the River Jordan where Christ was baptized while the other contains several pressed leaves from olive trees growing in the Garden of Gethsame where He prayed. There is also a camel carved from olive wood. All in all, maybe I should pay Wyckoff's today for permitting me to work here!

Just Between Us——

By Bobby Westbrook

The fourth week of the month usually provides a little breathing space in the rush of meetings — but since society, like nature, abhors a vacuum that's when everybody rushes to schedule some special event.

And when, as in this month, there is a fifth week — well, the beginnings of — then they really have a heyday. The Women's Club have latched on to both a fourth and a fifth Wednesday for two card parties; the Business and Professional Woman's Club is working up steam for their March of Dimes the last of the month.

And that, of course, is not counting the bridge foursomes that suddenly burgeon in every other living room After a lapse of some years when bridge seemed to wane in favor of Canasta and its many-carded relatives, there seems to be a definite resurgence of bridge in both public and private.

There is a fashion in projects and in programs just as there is in clothing. Last year it was all fashion shows; this year bridge seems to be forging ahead. PTA's are getting caught up in Civil Defense; church groups in Latin America; and assorted groups on pipe lines.

And there are revivals. Time was when the Tom Thumb wedding or the Parade of Bridal Gowns were all the rage, but until the Barett PTA scheduled its current big pageant of wedding gowns we hadn't had one for years.

Fortunately for me, the news on Family Fare, the cycle never seems to come round to doing nothing at all—except, of course on account of blizzards or ice storms which is a chance all these positive planners take in January.

Snow, Hail Cancel Final Round Of Crosby Tourney

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Snow and hail Sunday forced a one-day postponement of the final round in Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament for the first time in the event's quarter century of history.

As the greens at Pebble Beach became white shortly after the early groups teed off, Director of Play Maurie Luxford announced the last 18 holes will be played Monday.

Hoosier Joe Campbell, who led after 54 holes with a score of 210, six under par for that distance, must wait to see if he can stand off the challenge of veteran Doug Ford, two strokes back, and the other front runners battling for the $5,300 top prize.

Ten years ago, in 1952, heavy rains forced the tournament to be cut to 36 holes but snow never has interrupted tourney play here before.

Booked For TV

ABC-TV announced that the windup of the tournament will be telecast national between 5:00 and 6:30 p.m. EST Monday.

Following Campbell, of Pendleton, Ind., and Ford, of Vernon Hills, N.Y., at the end of 54 holes were Ken Venturi and Phil Rodgers, both at 214, four strokes off the pace.

A snowy hail fell about 7 a.m. (PST). Four groups of golfers left the first tee of this Pebble Beach Golf Course but were halted as the greens became white.

A temporary halt in the fall found crews working to push the snow off the green so play could continue. As professionals Art Wall and Jerry Barber, plus amateurs Alvin Dark and Arne Boscacci waited an hour to start, the first green was nearly cleared. Then snow started falling again.

Luxford and officials of the Professional Golfer Asssociation conferred, determined it would be at least an hour before other play might start, and ordered the postponement.

Crowds already had arrived for this scheduled finale in this 72-hole, four-day tournament.

The few golfers who had started early and then had to wait on the course during the snow will start again Monday.

Beats Skiing Elite

Ferries 1st Yank Winner In Austria Slalom Race

By ERIC WAHA

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (AP)—Chuck Ferries, 23, the slalom ace of Uncle Sam's skiing troupe, rallied America's sagging international fortunes Sunday by defeating the world's Alpine skiing elite for the slalom title of the 23rd Hahnenkamn Races.

The Aspen, Colo., skier danced and darted his way through 78 gets of the tricky Ganslern slope and posted a time of 69.7 seconds in the second heat, which combined with a 77.2 the first time down, gave him a winning combined total of 2 minutes, 26.9 seconds. French ace Guy Perillat was second with 2:27.6 and Austria's Gerhard Nenning third in 2:28.1.

The victory also earned Ferries second place in the over-all standings of the two-day event after he finished 14th in Saturday's downhill event. It marked the first time an American ever won the slalom here, though Buddy Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., captured the downhill in 1959.

Over-All Title

Nenning won the over-all title, finishing third Saturday and third again Sunday.

Ferries' victory brightened an otherwise dreary day for American skiers. He was the only performer who didn't meet any mishaps. Werner, the U.S. ace who withdrew from the downhill Saturday after falling and bending a ski, again failed to negotiate the course, fell several times and finally was disqualified for gate faults.

Jim Huega, Tahoe City, Calif., and Bill Kidd, Stowe, Vt., the other Americans in the event also tumbled and were disqualified.

But Ferries never faltered.

While admitting a dislike for the acute angles on the European course, Ferries literally flew through the gates and a crescendo of cheers broke from the thousands of spectators who matched his flawless performance draw to a close.

He was immediately mobbed by his teammates and other skiers who applauded his run. His sister Barbara, 18, one of Uncle Sam's top women skiers, embraced and kissed him while others pounded him on the back.

Wilt Collects 62 In Win

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Al Attles and York Larese triggered an overtime scoring burst that brought the Philadelphia Warriors a 139-132 victory over Syracuse in a National Basketball Association game Sunday.

Attles and Larese scored 11 straight points between them in the game's most decisive spurt and put it out of reach early in the extra period.

Wilt Chamberlain, the Warrior's giant scoring machine, struck for 62 points, the 30th time this season he has scored 50 or more. He also grabbed 24 rebounds. It was his two free throws with 28 seconds to go that tied it 122-122 and forced the game into overtime.

Hal Greer, the Nats outstanding backcourt man scored 44 points, this personal season high.

Bucks Earn 13th Victory In A Row

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

There have been "gold dust twins" of every description, but if ever a tandem deserved the title it is Ohio State basketball stars Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek. And the way they are going, the gold may be found in the glistening pot that will repose in the NCAA finals in March.

The Lucas-Havlicek combination was unbeatable again Saturday night as the top-ranked Buckeyes ran off their 13th straight victory this season with a solid 90-76 Big Ten triumph over Minnesota. It once more left the undefeated Buckeyes of Coach Fred Taylor without a challenger for this week's top spot among the nation's college basketball teams.

Lucas, operating flawlessly on offense and defense, scored 32 points and Havlicek added 24. Between them, they pulled down 30 rebounds, eight more than the Gophers could do as a team, with All-America Lucas grabbing 18.

This victory gave the Buckeyes a 3-0 conference record, which may get a more severe test Monday night when another All-America, Terry Dischinger, and his Purdue Boilermakers take on the high-flying Ohioans. But Dischinger's biggest disadvantage is that he doesn't have a twin like Havlicek.

And neither does All-America Chet Walker of Bradley, and that's why the ninth-ranked Braves are back again having to scrap for the Missouri Valley title after losing a hair-raiser to Wichita Saturday night 89-88. Walker scored 40 points, but a two-man effort by Gene WHey and Larry Van Eman, proved to be too much.

Wiley's two-pointer helped shove Wichita in front for good with two minutes to play. He scored 18 in all, and pulled down 26 rebounds. Van Eman paced his team's hot-shooting (71.9 in the first half) with 25 points as Bradley twice had the ball in the final seconds but couldn't score.

The other top teams that saw action on Saturday night emerged unscathed. Fifth-ranked Duquesne behind Willie Somerset's 21 points, ran its record to 13-2 with an easy 85-33 victory over St. Vincent's (Pa). Eighth-ranked Bowling Green won its 10th in a row, and 14th in 15 games this year, with a 68-55 Mid-American Conference victory over Marshall. And Mississippi State (12-1), finally went ahead to stay in the final four minutes en route to a 61-57 Southeastern Conference win over Mississippi.

There was scattered conference activity, but such stalwarts as SEC leader Kentucky (No. 2), third-ranked Cincinnati, fourth-ranked Kansas State, sixth-ranked Southern Cal and seventh-ranked Duke were all idle while midterm exams are going on.

Cornell gained a tie with idle Yale in the Ivy League, blasting Columbia 74-63 for a 4-0 record. Southern Conference leader West Virginia (13-3) beat Pitt 88-78 in a non-conference game while Stanford, tied for the Big Five lead, knocked over Washington 64-59. Utah's Skyline Kings won their fifth conference game in a row, 94-89 over Brigham Young, as Billy (The Hill) McGill tallied 43 points.

Among the independents, Bud Olsen came off the bench and led Louisville to an 82-81 victory over DePaul, scoring 19 points; Canisius defeated St. Bonaventure in Buffalo, 84-73; Hubie White scored 38 points in Villanova's easy 81-54 win over Penn; and Loyola of Chicago, with all its starters scoring in double figures, swamped Memphis State 100-76.

Among the other upsets, Colby beat Dartmouth for the first time in history, 84-63; Navy, with Mike Miga scoring 22 points, surprised Temple 61-51 and St. Francis (Pa) won over Niagara 64-61. Syracuse lost its 19th in a row over two seasons, and 12th this year, 85-57 to Manhattan.

In a couple of regionally televised games, North Carolina State whacked Maryland 68-61 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game and Michigan State beat arch-rival Michigan 80-74 in a Big Ten game.

Loney Dropped; Van Horn Gains

A two-point output against Northampton, has dropped Stroud Union's Warren Loney from third to fifth place in the Lehigh Valley League individual scoring standings.

Loney has a 16.1 average but before the game with Northampton, had a 21 a game mark.

And East Stroudsburg's Jack Van Horn has made the Lehigh-Northampton League listing for the first time this year.

Van Horn is fifth in the Northern Division with a 13.8 mark.

Pocono PGA Pro Ends 4th

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — James Stamps of Dalton, Ga., shot a final round 69 for a 72-hole total of 274 and a two-stroke victory in the Medal PGA Club championship Sunday.

Finishing second was Peter Cooper of Branford, Fla., who shot a final round 68 for 276.

Tony Longo, of Clarks Summit, Pa., with a 70-74-72-71—287 was tied for 14th place. Longo is vice president of the Pocono PGA.

Isom Scores 44 Points But Team Still Beaten, 85-83

RUDY'S - East Stroudsburg Hardware edged Jack's Market 85-83 and Patterson-Kelley slipped by Jaycees 57-56 in YMCA Independent Basketball games.

Lem Isom tossed in 44 points for Jack's, hitting on 20 field goals and four fouls. It was the best individual effort in the league this year.

Larry Clausen added 20 for the losers, who staged a strong final period rally.

Rudy's used only five players but four of them managed high double figures.

Doug Shook had 29 points, Clarence Hineline 20 and Russ Rogers and Harry Powlus 18 each.

Patterson-Kelley collected its winning margin by limiting the Jaycees to seven points in the third period.

Costanzo was the top scorer for the winners with 14 points, while Butz had 12.

John Martin scored 23 points for the losers.

The four teams are tied for first place with 1-1 records.

In Los Angeles Meet

Wilma Upset By Friend; Beatty Nips Frenchman

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mile-running star Jim Beatty, voted the outstanding athlete of the meet, Sunday had nothing but praise for Michel Jazy of France, whom he defeated in a thrilling race in the Los Angeles Invitational Indoor Track and Field Show.

The sell-out crowd in the sports arena Saturday night agreed that the Beatty-Jazy battle was the highlight of an evening in which Wilma Rudolph Ward, the world's greatest woman sprinter, suffer a rare defeat.

Willowy Wilma was beaten in the 60-yard dash by her teammate from Tennessee State, Jean Holmes, in :07.0. Wilma was :07.1.

Beatty, running for the Los Angeles Track Club, put on a rousing finish and caught the flying Frenchman in the final 30 yards of the mile. Both were clocked at 4:14.8, with Beatty bare inches in front.

It was Jazy's first experience on a board track. He was second to Herb Elliot in the 1960 Olympics.

"Jazy ran a very smart race," Beatty said. "I underestimated his running the last lap — well, I didn't underestimate his speed, but his ability on the curves. He looked like a veteran on the boards."

Steve Haas of Occidental scored an upset in the 500-yard-run in :57.8. Veteran Jim Grelle of Los Angeles staved off a stirring challenge in the final yards by Tom Sullivan, a Villanova freshman, and won the 1,000-yard run in 2:10.7. Frank Budd, Villanova, holder of the world outdoor 100-yard dash record, breezed in and took the 60-yard dash in :06.1.

Broad jump champion Ralph Boston of Tennessee State won his specialty with 24 feet, 11 inches, while John Rose of Arizona State upset better known competitors in the pole vault with a leap of 15-5¾.

Stout Scores Double Win At Ice Event

POCONO PINES — Al Stout of Mendenhall, Sunday once again dominated the sports car races at Lake Naomi.

Mendenhall won the front wheel drive heat race and went on to capture the 40 mile feature.

Stout drew the 11th starting position in the first come first served feature start and was never in contention until the final two laps.

Three Fail

There were 36 cars in the feature and all but three finished. The average feature speed was 60 miles per hour with a top speed of 108 m.p.h. reached by one car in the straightaway.

Only two area drivers took part in the program. Alex Coles of Shawnee, driving an Austin-Healey, as seventh in this heat and was fourth in class in the feature.

Gary Smith of Cresco failed to score in the four-hour long program.

Saturday's four-hour deep freeze race was cancelled because of lack of participants.

At 8 on chs. 2 and 10 "Pete and Gladys" get a surprise when they look up the justice of the peace who married them ten years earlier. In tonight's episode of "Window on Main Street" author Cameron Brooks (Robert Young) is determined to discover why a young girl tells stories about her grandfather that don't jibe with the facts. Davey Davison plays young Reenie Barnet who is trying to make her ancestor appear to be a hero, 8:30 to 9. Chs. 2 and 10.

On "The Danny Thomas Show," Danny and his boss, Charley, argue over who's the more important to the success of the Copa Club. They both lose because their bitter words lead to a split-up, 9 to 9:30, chs. 2 and 10. Following, from 9:30 to 10, Mayberry's women are up in arms when a pretty manicurist sets up business in Floyd's barber shop, on "The Andy Griffith Show." Barbara Eden guest stars.

In tonight's story on "Hennesey," a precocious 12-year-old girl shows up at the Navy base with a startling statement that casts suspicion on Max Bronsky's integrity and creates a sensation in the dispensary. Henry Kulky is featured as Bronsky, Karen Balkin and Jane Dulo are guests, 10 to 10:30. Garry Moore is vacationing, so Henry Morgan is substituting emcee on "I've Got A Secret" while Don Ameche takes Henry's place on the panel. Hugh O'Brien is the celebrity guest with a "secret," 10:30 to 11, chs. 2 and 10.

ABC's fare this evening consists of 1½ hours of western drama, a one-hour private-eye adventure and an hour-long medical drama. From 7:30 to 8:30 "The Cheyenne Show" stars Ty Hardin as Bronco Layne. On "The Rifleman" from 8:30 to 9, a deaf mute daughter of McCain's old Army buddy causes trouble in North Fork. John Archer plays a man, long believed dead, who is a murder suspect, in "The Artful Deceit" on "Surfside 6," 9 to 10. Lee Marvin and Jean Hagen guest star on "Ben Casey" in "A Story to be Softly Told," about a brain operation on a retarded child," 10 to 11 on chs. 6 and 7.

Solon Offers Compromise To Steelmen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Eugene Siler, R-Ky., said yesterday if the steel industry will forego new wage and price increases he will ask congress and President Kennedy to take a 10 per cent pay cut.

Another round of wage and price hikes in the steel industry would "adversely affect the budgets of millions of struggling Americans and put a sprag in the wheel of our rolling economy," Siler said in letters to United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald and Chairman Roger Blough of the U. S. Steel Corp.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Monday, January 22, 1962

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Order, neatness will count, as usual. Don't get a dilatory start or you may find self rushed later, even missing out in some ways. Each new week offers fresh challenge—YOU are equal.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — When working with or attached to a definite group or organization, bearing in mind the rules applicable for all: Co-operation a big word, in many cases. Disagree without wrangling.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Again comes the admonition to watch your step in the speech and quick-action depts. You never mean to hurt, but any hasty word or deed can; we all are at fault too often. Eat sensibly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — YOUR work first, then those additional or dreamed-up items. Look not disappointingly at past progress, God has graciously given a new day each day for revival of spirit, energies.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Dissent where you should; also be as keen to assent if it could help a situation or person. You dislike the unsavory so aid in stamping it out. Keep affairs in order.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—You can accomplish so very much once you put your bright mind to a task, it is a shame if you dawdle time or misuse it on regrets and contention. Accept a hint well meant.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Without abuse of eyes, brain or other faculties, step vigorously into this day with a will to put it high on the success agenda when week is over. Personal interests favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Select items and activities with especial care. Don't tarry with the less worthy. Home matters rate attention, even after hours. Discuss problems calmly with loved ones, minus fretting.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — If co-operating with anyone on a certain issue, be sure to have all facts, and information available. Steer clear of anything underhanded. Some top gains possible soon.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — With a prayer renew your best intentions, and start another new day with fresh vim, initiative. The unusual may achieve quicker than the known now. Keep at it!

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) —Take eager advantage of the old and new offerings, but make sure you employ only the above-board and acceptable. Agree where you should; speak your views, too; maintain order.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) —An old friendship renewed, new acquaintances, "different" things in tune with this day. Planet Neptune speaks of challenge, opposition, and consolidation of helpful forces.

YOU BORN TODAY: The beginning of the forward-looking Sign Aquarius; the past few days have witnessed some of your traits strengthening in the waning Capricorn. Look more confidentially to the powerful (and it is) ability of your assets, develop them, never wasting time wishing or merely hoping. Hold hope and faith high, then back them with daily effort, knowing that God will see you through if you ask Him. This is a testing period; your constructive nature can aid others; you have inventiveness, instinctively know what to do in emergencies. Keep strength fit, shun worry; also take plain diet seriously for health's sake. Study, gain information all during life. Birthdate of: many leaders in the diplomatic and engineering fields; renowned religious, teachers, athletes, writers.

Getting Old Stock Prices

By William A. Doyle

Q. I sold 100 shares of stock in a well-known company last year and bought some other stock with the money. I bought the 100 shares I sold way back in the early 1920s. I have no record of the price I paid or the date of purchase. Realizing that I will need that information, when I file my Federal tax return, I wrote to the company. They wrote back that they could not help me.

How will I go about making out an intelligent tax report in March? I'll bet you get a lot of letters such as this?

A. Indeed I do. Usually, I advise people with this problem to write to the company whose stock is involved. But you drew a blank there.

Next, write to the transfer agent for the stock. The name of the transfer agent (usually a big bank) is printed on the stock certificate. You no longer have the certificate. But your broker will be able to give you the transfer agent's name.

The transfer agent will be able to tell you on what date your name was put on the books as a stockholder of record of the company. That won't be the exact date on which you bought the stock. But it will give you a rough idea. Your purchase date was some days earlier, depending on how long it took to transfer the stock to your name.

The transfer agent may also be able to tell you the market price of the stock at that time. If the transfer agent can't get the market price information for you, your broker should be able to supply that information.

Then, when you file your tax return, you can list that market value back at the time you bought it as your cost price. You know the price you received when you sold the stock.

The difference between the two is either a long-term profit or a long-term loss. It should be reported as such, when you file your income tax return. The Federal tax return is due no later than April 15, not in March. Remember, the filing date was changed a couple of years ago.

One thing you mustn't overlook is that the stock you owned might have been split during the time you owned it—giving you more shares than you originally bought.

If your stock was split, your "tax-cost-basis" per share was re-shares, this is no problem. If you sold only some of your shares, you have to figure your profit on a per shares basis. Your broker can tell you if the stock was split while you owned it.

Q. Is it possible for anyone to be holding Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds that are not bearing interest?

A. No. All outstanding E bonds, even those issued way back in 1941, are accumulating interest. As E bonds reached maturity, the U.S. Treasury "extended" their maturities for additional periods.

For instance, the first E bonds were sold on May 1, 1941. They matured on May 1, 1951. Then, they were given a "first extended maturity period" to May 1, 1961. Now, they are going through a "second extended maturity period."

Any E bonds you own continue to accumulate more interest. The longer you hold them, the more valuable they become.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Marx And Maestro Help Make Celebration A Ball

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A grand old lady had her 105th birthday party Saturday night, and it was at once a fine artistic and social triumph and as funny as a cartload of monkeys.

That's because someone had the brainwave—and the courage—to team a Marx and a maestro, along with other stars, for the academy of music's 105th anniversary concert.

It's the academy, venerable monument to culture, that proudly bears the nickname of grand old lady.

So as a result of what many consider the gayest, least inhibited show ever put on at the academy, its gallery of gods now includes that frenzied figure of foolery, Harpo, eldest and wildest of the Marx brothers, comedy favorites for some 40 years.

Not since the brothers played fast and loose with opera in a memorable movie has the Marx treatment been given to music so deftly and captivating as in Harpo's supposedly formal debut conducting a major symphony orchestra.

Sharing the spotlight with Leopold Stokowski, the guest conductor, soprano Birgit Nilsson and baritone George Londo, Harpo led the Philadelphia orchestra in the final of Haydn's symphony in C major, the charming, playful, lilting "toy" symphony.

Just as everyone expected, Harpo cared not a hoot about decorum. He had been engaged to further a fashion in recent years of providing a light-hearted interlude in the birthday concerts. There were some, of course, who thought this might be too light-hearted, that it might be asking for anarchy in the academy to invite Harpo to such fancy doings.

It was quite a test for the little genius of lunacy. He faced an audience majestically clothed, a patrician gathering which traditionally is known for its disciplined enthusiasms.

Since Harpo followed Stokowski's brilliant interpretations of Wagner, Mozart, Borodin and Gounod, Harpo surely had his work cut out for him.

His vestments were ludricrous. He wore the frock coat and tucked in tie of an old Viennese music master, loose-fitting fawn-colored pants, a battered-down hat over his customary ragmop wig, and sneakers. Whatever came to hand served as a baton. Mostly he wielded what over the years has been one of his trademarks—a piece of tubing the length of a cane, topped with a rubber bulb that honks like those devices on tin lizzies of yore.

Other props he had aplenty, including a metronome with which he kept track of tempos, a balloon, a pistol, and a fishing rod. He whistled in the classic Harpo fashion, with fingers thrust into mouth. When the music grew soft, he yawned in utter boredom. When the drums came in with full authority he was all galvanic action. Sometimes in between he'd hold out his disgrace of a hat like a bad mendicant.

The warmth of a personality as basically gentle as its humor is hilarious thawed any frosty edges of audience reaction. And if any clincher were needed to complete the conquest, it came when seven small children, whose fathers are in the orchestra, trooped on stage, each with a toy instrument. Altogether beguiling in their best bibs and tuckers, the kids joined with Harpo and the grown-up players in the windup of Haydn's merry work. Harpo and the children were indeed a perfect match. The audience at that moment cast aside restraint.

Harpo reappeared, plucking out popular music on his harp, but this was anti-climax.

New Production Line

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp. said yesterday it plans a new production line at Pittsburg, Calif., that will double its western states' capacity for producing galvanized steel sheets.

The new line, producing sheets wider and heavier than the existing line, will be in operation next year, the company said.

World Scans India's Plans For Furture

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — It will not be surprising if India's army tries in the spring to seize control of some of the disputed Ladakh borderlands.

The attempt could lead to fighting with the Chinese — the first open warfare between the world's two most populous nations after years of border bitterness punctuated by a few accidental clashes.

Both nations claim the bleak, almost uninhabited area of Ladakh. It lies 400 miles north of New Delhi behind the world's two highest mountain ranges, the Himalayas and the Karakorams.

It is logistically impossible for India to mount what could properly be called an offensive in this remote area. Any fighting would be small-scale patrol actions.

Political pressures are strong in India to do something to dislodge the Chinese from 12,000 square miles of eastern Ladakh. Chinese control has been established by a series of outposts of perhaps no more than 50 men apiece. They are connected with larger Chinese garrisons by tenuous supply lines through rugged terrain three miles and more above sea level.

The Chinese moved into eastern Ladakh in the mid-1950s and built a road linking Sinkiang Province with Tibet. The occupation became publicly known in 1959.

Since then the superior Chinese logistical position has enabled them to increase the area under control while India was slowly opening up roads and stockpiling airlifted supplies.

Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon has long been criticized for doing nothing about Ladakh. Lately he has been talking tougher, saying India will regain its territory when the time is right.

The Indians may try to penetrate be-tween some of the most advanced Chinese outposts and establish positions east of them. The Chinese would be forced to withdraw from the outposts to avoid starvation, or fight.

Troops are slowly being with drawn - from Goa and the two other enclaves India captured from Portugal last month. That almost bloodless action provided a training exercise for the Indian army. It also fired popular enthusiasm for more military successes and turned attention to Ladakh and two other problems facing India: Nagaland and Kashmir.

Nagaland is 6,000 square miles of jungled hills in eastern India where rebel groups have been fighting nine years in an effort to obtain independence. More than 30,000 Indian soldiers have been unable to halt the guerrilla warfare.

There is no guarantee that even a massive increase of troops could catch the guerrillas, who skip across the adjacent Burmese border when things get hot.

There is little political pressure to do something in Nagaland.

Political pressure does exist on Kashmir. This Himalaya state is divided along a United Nations ceasefire line. India -claims it is all legally Indian and Pakistan demands self-determination for it.

Since Goa some Indians have been talking tougher about Kashmir, but there is no sign India is preparing for a resumption of fighting with Pakistan for the area. There seems to be Indian willingness to settle for what it already has.
